STUDENTS VOTE FOR CHANGE IN GARNET

Brucker Reports Basketball Game With Colgate.

PROF. OPDYKE SPEAKS

King Reports for Freshman Team on Amsterdam Game.

Student body meeting, the last regular meeting of the year, opened shortly after twelve o'clock Monday. Following a report on the Colgate game by George Brucker and the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting the motion of December fifteenth concerning the Garnet was brought forward.

This motion had to do with a resolution of the Junior class to change the Garnet from a class to a college organ with a resultant broadening of its scope. Discussion was opened and Professor Opdyke spoke for the publication board in favor of the change. Following this talk a motion was made by Georgy '21 to amend the motion so that a tax of four dollars would be charged at the beginning of the second semester and to be collected by the treasurer.

The motion finally passed in this form and the Garnet is now a Union College book, supported by the entire student body.

McGee announced basketball practice and Corigliano, '20, made a short speech on "The Advantages of a Small College." A motion was entertained for adjournment and the meeting concluded at 12.25 P. M.

At a recent meeting of the Junior class it was voted to change the name of the Garnet from "The Garnet of '1921" to the "Union College Garnet" published by the class of '21. This is a change which has long been facing the college. The Garnet, originally a class book solely, has come more and more to include the whole college in its scope, in fact it is the only year book that the school possesses. In that case the name has ceased to apply and the new name together with the support of the college, in its undertaking, is sought by the class.

In addition to this, candidates for Editor-in-Chief and Business Manager are desired, from the Sophomore class, and a literary and an art editor from the Junior class. Contributions of novel character along either of these lines are invited from all men in college and an unusually excellent Garnet is expected.

DELTA UPSILON HOLDS INFORMAL DANCE

Last Thursday evening an informal dance was given by Delta Upsilon fraternity. The patronesses were: Mrs. DeWitt C. Smith, of Schenectady, and Mrs. Dalton James of Albany. Music was furnished by Turner's orchestra.

Junior Week Entertains Many Novel Features

Special Show at the Van Promised by Manager.

With the tang of real winter in the air thoughts of Junior week become more and more definite, with subsequent removal of social armour from moth balls. With such a spirit abroad an excellent and novel festive season is hoped for, and those of us who have charge of affairs say it is to be the "Best ever." Though the veterans in our number seem inclined to doubt the fact the following program seems to allay the ennu of even the violent skeptics.

Thursday afternoon marks the official hop-off during which an arrival of guests and an arrangement of their effects takes place, and in the evening a basketball game with Rochester has been scheduled. Rochester has a good team—we know that because "Ocey" Kuolt is coaching it, but we hope our warriors will take heart under the gaze of so many fair ones. At any rate it will be a spirited contest and well worth witnessing. Following this there will be house dances at the several fraternities.

Mr. McDonald of our local theatre has booked a special show for Friday afternoon and though "Rex", our erstwhile critic seems to hold that gentleman's taste to be poor, we are rather of an opinion that time will not be wasted watching the production.

In the evening of the same day comes the Junior Promenade, the event on which all eyes are centered. Wittstein will play, and the committee have arranged a fitting setting for such an orchestra. Patronesses will be: Mrs. Richmond, Mrs. Garis, Mrs. Ellery, Mrs. Yelverton, Mrs. Hanson and Mrs. Cameron.

Saturday afternoon will be featured by a hockey game, with whom it has not yet been settled, and teas at the fraternities while in the evening the musical clubs will give their justly famous concert.

Ante-bellum days could not have excelled this program, whatever were their advantages, and we are all looking forward to an enjoyable week-end. As Shakespeare says: A Hall! A Hall! Give room and foot it!

DELTA PHI TO HOLD DINNER AND DANCE

The Delta Phi Fraternity will hold a formal dinner and dance tonight. Festivities will begin at seven o'clock and the dancing will be concluded about two. Lewis' orchestra of Albany will furnish the music.

About 30 couples will attend and Dean and Mrs. J. F. F. Garis and Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Merriam will act as chaperons. One of the novel features of the evening will be a Christmas tree with presents for everybody.

Garnet Quintette to Play in New York Christmas

The Garnet now has one defeat and one victory chalked against it, having won from State College a week ago on the Union court. The schedule calls for a Christmas vacation trip, with games in New York City with Crescent A. C. and Brooklyn Poly. Besides these teams there will be games this season with Army, Navy, Princeton, Cornell, Dartmouth, Syracuse, Amherst, Wesleyan, Williams and New York University. Of these Syracuse will be the only team to meet the Garnet twice this season, the second games that have been the rule with Williams, Amherst and Wesleyan, having been cut off so that Union could meet these leading college teams. Union tried to make connections for games with all of the big six, but was unable to fix it up with Yale because of conflicting dates and Pennsylvania and Columbia refused games.

Clubs Hold Forth at Hudson Falls

Sandy Hill Council Well Pleased With Entertainment—Many Alumni Present.

The Musical Clubs gave a very successful concert at Hudson Falls Friday night at the Masonic Temple in that village. The clubs were secured under the auspices of the Sandy Hill Council 587 of the Royal Arcanum.

About 35 members of the clubs made the trip. A considerable number of Union alumni were present and a warm reception is reported. Mr. E. O. Kennedy substituted as accompanist for Mr. Franzke.

Union Five Defeated by Colgate in Spirited Game

FROSH OPENS BASKETBALL SEASON WITH VICTORY

'Chick' Hequembourg's Men Outplay the Team from Amsterdam High.

Friday night the Garnet "cubs" journeyed to Amsterdam and came away victorious after a hard fought contest. The score was 24 to 22 and would indicate a close game but the first year men had the better of the meeting throughout. It was the first game for the youngsters and they made an extremely creditable showing against a team used to playing in a much smaller court than our own. Not until the last few moments of play were the Union "cubs" in any danger, for the score was 24 to 10 until then, when the boys of Amsterdam ran up six baskets in rapid succession. Union had hard luck in getting the ball through the ring or the score would have indicated a walk-away. Although the "Frosh" had eight free shots not one was made.

The game was played on the Y. M. C. A. court in Amsterdam, which is much smaller than the Garnet home court. The game was cleanly contested and there were relatively few fouls called. Both teams were of approximately the same weight. Schilling, the former Colgate star, is in charge of the Amsterdam boys, while "Chick" Hequembourg '12 is mentor for the 1923 men. Kay, the first string center for the Union team did not play as he sustained a broken shoulder in practice a few days ago. He will undoubtedly be unable to appear on the court this year. Eight men made the trip and all played some part of the game. Cox and Simmons featured for Union, while Lehman was the chief point-getter for Amsterdam.

Captain Brucker Stars for Union and Cottrell Leads Opponents.

SCORE 17 TO 26

Hamilton Players Prove Too Much for Garnet in Novel Contest.

Saturday night a squad of speedy basketball players from Colgate appeared on the court in the Alumni gymnasium and defeated the Garnet artists by a score of 26 to 17.

Along about the sixth minute of play Colgate scored 10 points in less than sixty seconds. The rest of the game, as seen by the score, was approximately a tie although the Colgate men put up a wonderful defense throughout the whole game.

Colgate "drew first blood" and proceeded to pile up about ten points before "Jo" Jones broke away and dropped in Union's first tally. West, Colgate's regular center, did not play at all.

The Union team seemed practically unable to penetrate the admirable defense of Colgate early in the game and found it almost impregnable for the rest of the period. The first half ended with the score 14 to 6 in favor of Colgate.

In the second half Colgate succeeded in holding her lead although at one time it was seriously threatened by a new lease of life which the Union players took.

N. G. Anderson and Cottrell, forward and center respectively, did most of the scoring for the visitors. The former made five baskets and the latter four. Captain Brucker scored seven of Union's 17 points—one basket and five foul shots.

Tom Wilber was substituted for J. Mudge in the second half. McBride and Mosher were substituted for Cottrell and N. G. Anderson.

Union's main difficulty seemed to lie in their failure to advance the ball successfully to within striking distance and luck was not with them on long shots.

Next week the Garnet goes to New York City, on Monday plays Crescent A. C., and on Tuesday Brooklyn Poly.

The First Defeat.

The defeat of the basketball game Saturday, as a game, was probably one of the best that has been witnessed on the Gym floor in some time, although the result was disappointing. It was obvious that the team has got away somewhat from its style of short passing which has characterized Union's playing for the last two years. The misfortune of the whole thing is that Colgate should have been placed so close to the top of the schedule. Had the Garnet quintet been allowed about two more games with lighter teams the result might have been much more gratifying.

However, Union has played her last game with Colgate for the season. The team will put forth on its Christmas trip with the best wishes of the College for a successful and victorious crusade that will make our holidays the merrier.

Critics and Burden Bearers.

A just critic is probably a man's best friend. But one finds so many critics whom it is difficult to distinguish from "kickers." It is so easy to "kick" that practically everybody does it. The recipients of this criticism are usually just rational beings with a little more than the ordinary amount of work shovled on them. Strictly, no one has a right to criticise a movement which he is not supporting. No one has a right to destroy an existing institution unless in its place he can supplant something better. But the professional "kicker" just kicks—he has made a science of it. He can criticise a league of nations or the weather without having any knowledge of either.

We find them in politics, on newspapers, at home, abroad, and even in college where men are supposed to have some vestige of intelligence. And we always find in a vastly lesser quantity the burden bearer.

They are few; yet their energies enter into every phase of college life. Are students looking for a manager, an editor, a booster? Half a dozen names occur. Not many more. They turn to one of these. By most of their fellows they are regarded as fortunate, nay, lucky. They do not represent the remarkable intellects. It sometimes happens that students who have ability but are devoid of interest or enthusiasm in any great degree, look upon them with envy.

Now the burden bearer has his reward, not in the satisfaction which comes from the fact that he is editor or manager or chairman, though there is some satisfaction in these things, but in the fact that he has started right. He will not be long in college. Four years gets him through. He is no flunker. Then he goes out in life, and life lasts a pretty long time. He goes out trained. He has learned on the college paper more than a smattering of journalism. He has learned as manager more than a smattering of business methods. He has run into knotty problems and solved them. He has learned how to lead men.

He does not face the hard facts of the business world with only academic knowledge (though strange to say nine times out of ten he has more of that commodity than his less active brother) but with knowledge of business in the bargain. He looks the business world in the face with some assurance. If there are desirable jobs hanging around, he is apt to land one. He is the kind of man business men want.

More than that, he has made many friends, and friends not only cheer but they help. His teachers have watched him, have estimated his worth to the college, and concluded that he will be worth in life. And teachers get not a few letters asking about this man and that. He has met the liveliest men in other colleges. He is remembered by them as a pushing fellow not afraid of work and responsibility. He belongs to that fraternity of men who can do things.

But to come to the point. Men are needed to run college activities, to edit the college paper, to write the articles, to manage the business of this and that enterprise. The next year will see the same demand. Get into the swim. Train yourself. Show yourself ready to assume responsibility. Fill the gaps made vacant. It's a privilege and opportunity—an opportunity not only to do your bit for the college, but to train yourself for life, to make the acquaintance of other men who are actively engaged in college work in other institutions, and to increase several fold your chance of success in that bigger life for which college is only the preparation.

Cut out the "Razz." Get off and push. Then if the thing doesn't go, "razz" yourself. You'll then appreciate more what it means.

The Mail Bag

"OF MANNERS."

The war, that baneful blessing, has rubbed off a great deal of our polish. The rough surfaces underneath are appearing (as is instanced by the fact that profanity, now stronger and more firmly entrenched on the campus, than ever has evoked the protests of more than one observer.) In general, manners have suffered from the abrasion of training camp and field, and we are not quite the "cultured gentlemen" the "well-bred" individuals we once were.

All of which is distinctly to be deplored, since one of the main purposes of college training, strange as the statement may seem, is the imparting of veneer—a top layer to gloss over the rough surfaces and lubricate against the friction of life. Culture itself is, after all, a sort of top layer and manners are a part of this culture. "To have good forms," says the sage Francis Bacon, "is like perpetual letters commendatory." Though a good nature is the highest part of a man's character, yet that is not all. To have shoes well shaped and of good leather is the better part of being well shod, yet few of us are desirous of going into good company without the addition of a polish on the natural shoe. Just so, the natural man is worth more when he has the veneer of manners, in the right proportion; for manners are the outward and visible sign of culture and gentlemanliness.

If manners are to be gained for use in life,—though college itself may not demand them,—the present is the time for their cultivation; for "custom is the principal magistrate of man's life," and manners must be habitual, or they will seem unnatural and affected. To cast all thought of manners to the winds while in college is practically to give up hope of ever acquiring them; for habits are best formed in youth, and four years of laxness makes a habit likely to prove invincible.—Williams Record.

Our attention was drawn, the other day, to one of our verdant brothers who, when asked to recite his Alma Mater began: "Fourscore and seven years ago." We agree that he must have been living, at least mentally, in that era but why brag about it?

And here we append a very crude tribute, on our part, to the milk-wagon. We apologize:

TO A MILK WAGON.

This is the snow white treasure ship of dawn,
Which plies the deserted street
Through dark, cold carious whence all life is gone
And down dark aisles forlorn,
Where echoing stumbling feet

Thou whited sepulchre of mankind's sin,

Wilt thou thy fate bewail,

Or wilt thy legend wear

Like halos in the muses' sacred hair
Or tell like old wife's tale?

And whither have they flown

This dissolute crew

That to the dawn and thou their ways

That like soft music soothed their

COLUMBIA PAY RISE EFFECTIVE ON JAN. 1

Trustees Decide to Begin Immediately
Payment of Increases Voted

Members of the teaching staffs of Columbia University were notified recently by President Nicholas Murray decided to put the new scale of salaries into effect on January 1 instead of waiting for the beginning of the new fiscal year on July 1. The new scale was approved by the trustees at their last meeting.

Instead of $300,000, as originally estimated, $600,000 a year will be required to carry out the new scale of pay. It was announced also that the increase would include Teachers and Barnard Colleges which, although under separate corporate administration, are parts of Columbia's educational system. The new scale also will affect the members of the university library staff and the staff of the Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds.

The probability that Columbia also might appeal to the public for funds to supply the new buildings needed to take care of the increased registration and the expansion of schools and courses was mentioned in the announcement given out at the university. No definite plan for such a campaign has been made yet.

"It is plain that unless the work of the university is to be thrown into confusion immediate steps must be taken to provide new buildings, both for academic work and for residence," said President Butler. "It is probable that the greater part of two academic years would be required to complete any such buildings, and therefore, if begun in the near future, they could not be ready for occupancy earlier than the summer or autumn of 1921."

It was pointed out that before making this last increase in the scale of pay, the university had added about $500,000 a year to its salary budget. Under the present scale, full professors will receive from $6,000 to $8,000 a year, with the expectation of paying $10,000 to a limited number of teachers of unusual distinction. Associate professors are to receive $4,500 to $5,000; assistant professors, $3,000 to $3,500; instructors, $2,000 to $2,400, and assistants, $1,000 to $1,200.

"Why, of course, dear," her mother replied.

"Do cannibals?"

"No, I am afraid they don't."

"But, mother," the little girl insisted, "if a cannibal eats a missionary, he'll have to go, won't he?"

A Gateway—Electrical

ONLY a forty-foot gateway bounded by two brick pilasters and ornamental lamps, but unlike any other gateway in the entire world.

For back of it is the General Electric Company's main office building, accommodating 2300 employees. And just next door is its laboratory with the best equipment for testing, standardizing and research at the command of capable engineers. Then down the street—a mile long—are other buildings where everything electrical, from the smallest lamp socket to the huge turbines for electrically propelled battleships, is made by the 20,000 electrical workers who daily stream through.

What a story this gate would tell, if it could, of the leaders of the electrical industry and business, of ambassadors from other institutions and from foreign lands.

The story would be the history of electric lighting, electric transportation, electric industries and electricity in the home.

This gateway, as well as the research, engineering, manufacturing and commercial resources back of it, is open to all who are working for the betterment of the electrical industry.

Illustrated bulletin, Y-863, describing the company's several plants, will be mailed upon request. Address General Electric Company, Desk 43, Schenectady, New York

 "DEAR ROSE"
 (With Apologies to "Dere Mable")
 (E. B. A. '22)
 *****

Union College, Schenectady, N. Y.
 Tuesday, December 23rd, 1919.

Dear Rose:—

Xmas don't come but once a year, Rose, and after I bought your present downtown this morning I was darned glad it don't. I'm darned glad, too, that I'm not in love with no other girls that I've got to buy things for. Just to show you how much I love you, Rose, I'll tell you how I worked it last Christmas when I was going with Nellie. I asked her to go to the movies one night just before Xmas and then never showed up so she'd get sore. She did, and we didn't speak until way long last March, so I didn't have to get her anything for Xmas at all. So consider yourself lucky, Rose. But afterwards I felt kind of sorry, for her brother told me that Nellie had a dandy pair of military brushes all bought and wrapped up to give me, and she paid $2.75 for them. I was only going to give her a book, anyway. That would have cost me fifty or $75, so the joke was on me after all. This year I'm not going to take no chances. You ought to appreciate all the things I've done for you, Rose. Didn't I take you to the Soiree? And don't forget that I've invited you to the Freshmen banquet?

Last year I figured up after Xmas and I come out pretty good after all—I figured that I got $3.25 more than I give. But you never can tell—the Xmas before a lost over a $1.00.

I'm going to bring up some missile toe to hang up on that lamp in your hall, Rose. I can get a sprig for a quarter and I figure I ought to get that much benefit out of it easy. No—I've changed my mind. I'm not going to get any after all, for there's no telling but what that new French prof I hear you've been going around with up in C. H. S. might come sneaking around, and I'm not going to spend no money for missile toe for somebody else to use, Rose. There is fellows just so low that they wouldn't mind kissing you under my missile toe. I ain't going to take no chances. If I bring any at all, it's going to be a small chunk that I can carry in my pocket, and believe me, I'll take it with me when I go. Safety first, every time, Rose. Nobody's going to put anything over on Egbert.

I may get home before this letter does, but I don't want you to think I am neglecting you, Rose. Will you be down to the station to meet me? I just made a big "U" out of drawing paper to stick on my suitcase so everybody will know I'm a college man. I'm going to be a darned busy man, Rose, going out with all the girls who will want dates, but I'll give you first chance most of the time when I haven't got no other dates—that's fair, isn't it?

Be sure and meet the 11:15 Wednesday morning—I'll need somebody to help carry my two suitcases.

Yours until Xmas,
 EGBERT.

REPLY TO UNION.

Following is the first of a series of replies to letters published bi-weekly in the Union "Concordiensis." Our Rose is a wild woman of the Freshman class. Watch her!

State College, Albany, N. Y.

Dear Egg:

You said you're not feeling well. Our dog's been sick, too. You both ate so much Thanksgiving I don't see how you could eat and more for a week after. Now, Egg, I don't want you to "cast any asparagus" at my fudge. Maybe if you'd left some for somebody else it wouldn't have affected you that way.

Yes, all the girls at the College were kidding me about "that fellow with the spats." One of the fellows down here must have seen you, too, for he said:

"Gee, when a fellow wears his hair parted in the middle, that ain't so bad, but when his hair is parted and he wears spats, too, oh boy!" I guess they're all crazy about you, Egg, every one of 'em, but you love me, don't you? There, I'm getting serious! No, they won't follow your style, Eggie; they're real nice fellows down here.

Speaking against my handwriting, why don't you tell all the other girls to put their names on the outside and then you won't be disappointed. Ma always knows yours and says to me when I come in, "Here's a letter from your stickin' plaster."

Oh, gosh, Egg! I think you're an awful goop. I guess you found out all right by now that the Dean didn't want you to eat with him. I guess you had to explain to him that you ain't been feeling well. I guess he says you'd better hurry up and get some interest in your work. Huh? We women have lots more perspicuity than you men. The Dean asked me to call on him, too, but I knew what he wanted. He just told me how fine I was getting along. You better'd ask him to the Mohawk, Egg.

Now, Egg, I just been wondering about that Soiree. It's from 9:30 to 3:30, ain't it? And I'm going to save you some money, cause I'm going to stay with my Aunt over night so as I'll be able to see State beat Union Saturday night. Our coach says we're going to win. It's kinda tough for you to have to lose the first game you play with us but it makes it easier when you know it's my college. You said you'd give me anything.

Well, Egg, I got to iron a middy blouse for gym. He uses an awful lot of 'em. I'll only be able to write once a week cause Ma says she don't want anything serious and it costs too much for stamps. You'll write twice as usual tho, won't you?

Yours, till Dick asks me to marry him.

Rose.
 P. S.—Sorry, but all that "Save the Baby" Ma used on the dog. You'd probably need something stronger anyhow. Pa swipes it at the store and the boss has been there regular.

Your Rosebud.

Occupation for an Idle Moment.

"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Torkins, "have you a minute to spare?"

"Yes."

"Well, I wish you would tell me exactly what is meant by a 'league of nations' and 'freedom of the seas.'"

Hardly anyone objects to saving money.

We do that every day for Carl customers.

To Union Men who do not know this store we'd like to say that we really believe we can save you money on such items as underwear, hosiery, shirts, neckwear, etc.

You'll find, too, the kinds young fellows like—"Duofold" Union Suits, Shirts and Drawers, B. V. D.'s, C.S. & M. Neckwear, "Lion Collars and Shirts—the best makes and those we can stand back of and guarantee.

Men to wait on you who know their business. Some of the boys know us—we want all of them to.

THE PAST AND PRESENT

Keep abreast with the times. We are not living in the stage coach decade, at which time the mentioning of flying machines would have been taken as an idle jest. In the present century you wouldn't think of traveling as one did in by-gone days. Neither would you of having your shoes repaired by the old style hard method way, if you knew the superiority in our up-to-date machine way of repairing.
