Union's Golden Age To Begin Next Fall

President's Predictions Promise
Hasty Realization.

INCREASE IN FACULTY.

Warranted by Large Increase in Endowment, Which Now
Passes the Two Million Mark.

The year of 1919-20 bids fair to be a banner year in the history of the College. Some very necessary additions have been made to the faculty in the persons of Prof. Harold Chidsey, Dr. William L. Wannlass, and Prof. Frank P. McKibben. The College Union and Administration building will be ready for business in the fall.

(By L. W. Jones, '21.)

The coming year should be the best that Union has ever experienced. After a period of war conditions our college has emerged in better shape than almost any other institution of its size and character. Not long ago, in an address to the alumni, President Richmond made a prophecy that bids fair to be fulfilled.

"There is not the slightest doubt," he observed, "that in the next ten years this college is going to make an enormous advance, thanks to increased endowment, by expansion in its engineering course, greater compensation for professors, strengthening of the faculty and better facilities for the study of physical science. In electrical science we can already compete, not only with any college, but with any university in the world. In the work of reconstruction Union College is going to participate in a very large way. We have suffered the loss of many very close to us, but there has been no disintegration or weakening. We have come out of this war stronger than we went in. Union College will have no greater asset in the years to come than the record of what her boys have done in this war."

The increase of Union's endowment to a point beyond two million dollars has made possible substantial acquisitions in the faculty. The need for more instructors and even professors has long been recognized. The chairs of economics and philosophy, for instance, have been vacant during the past year. It is probable that at least eight or ten new members of the faculty will begin their work here next fall. Of this number three have recently been announced. These new appointments are to fill vacancies in the philosophy, economics and civil engineering departments. Harold Chidsey, Ph. D., will become assistant

Athletes Seek New Worlds to Conquer

Track and Baseball Men to Meet
Hamilton and R. P. I.

OUTLOOK FAVORABLE.

Hamilton Weak in Field But is Strong on Track—Baseball
Line-up Practically the Same.

Early this morning the track team left for Clinton, where it will contend in speed, strength and ability with the Blue and Buff athletes. The Garnet lads have had several good workouts during the week, and Union followers may be sure that they will do their best against their rivals.

Coach Bill Northrup will take eighteen men to Hamilton. Although the trials held Thursday afternoon were important, they did not definitely decide those who would make the trip. In these practice runs several men who have not shown up well formerly displayed marked signs of improvement.

On the whole, the outlook for Union is very favorable. Hamilton is noticeably weak in the field events but is strong in the track activities. Bill Hanley's enforced absence will diminish Union's chances in the weights, but still with Beekman and Myers on the job, we may come through strong. The meet begins at 1:30 and will be followed by a baseball game between Hamilton and Syracuse. Fourteen events will take place in the meet, six in field events and eight in track.

Captain Rapelje has been jumping well this week and with Speer will take care of that end of the game. All the men have gone there to fight and do their best.

The men who left with the team are: Captain Rapelje, Coach Northrup, Manager Snell, Lyman, Beekman, Speer, Van Deusen, Hoag, Stevens, Potter, Eddy, Myers, Dean, Davies, Graubart, Houck, Eberle, Lock and Boardman.

Baseball Team Leaves This P. M.

This afternoon the baseball team, escorted by a large number from the student body, goes to Troy to face our old-time opponents on the diamond. A considerable amount of feeling will no doubt be manifested as to the outcome of the struggle.

Yesterday afternoon considerable batting was done, as this seems to be the most vulnerable spot in the team's make-up. The new batting-cage is a great addition and trouble-saver for Hal. Beyond a doubt he appreciates its acquisition.

PERSHING OUTGENERALED BY WOOD IN POLITICS

The old adage, "Absence makes the heart grow fonder," failed to hold in the case of General Pershing, who was defeated by an overwhelming majority for President of the United States by Major General Leonard H. Wood, according to the straw vote taken by the student body last Tuesday.

The vote follows: Major General Wood, 125; General Pershing, 38; President Wilson, 32; Mr. Hughes, 16; Senator Lodge, 16; Senator Clark, 7; Mr. McAdoo, 7; Senator Root, 5; Senator Johnson, 1.

Upper Classes Want A Revised System

Abolition of Honor System Defeated by the Junior and Senior Classes.

The important question which is occupying our minds at present, whether or not we shall retain the Honor System, and, if so, how it can be made to work with maximum efficiency, promises to result in favor of the latter.

The Honor Court has prepared the following questionnaire:

1. Do you favor improving the present Honor System so that it shall work with maximum success?
2. Do you favor the abolition of the Honor System?
3. Do you believe that the Honor System can work if the students do not report infractions?
4. Do you yourself feel willing to report infractions under the present system?
5. Should you feel willing to report, if a sufficiently large per cent of the students wanted an improved Honor System, including a strict system of reporting?
6. What per cent (see question 5) should you call sufficiently large?

The Seniors voted on this Wednesday morning after chapel and were unanimously in favor of the Honor System and the result was the same for the change. In the Junior meeting Thursday morning the result was practically the same. The Sophomores voted Friday morning and the Freshmen today.

As soon as all the results of the questions are in, the matter will be taken up by the Honor Court and changes made in our present system.

Colgate Takes First Game of Home Season

Owing to Garnet's Failure to Connect With Ball.

BRUCKER AT SECOND.

Holleran and Blume Pitch Strong Game—Colgate Scores 3 in Last—Score 5-0.

Union suffered a defeat in the initial game on the home grounds, at the hands of the Colgate, Tuesday. The defeat was, however, not attributable to poor fielding or poor pitching. The serious trouble was the inability of the home players to get their eye on the out-drop and slow-ball that was presented by Blume, the twirler of the Colgate nine. Benny Beaver seemed to be the only one who could find the visiting pitcher. He managed to obtain three hits.

The pitching of the local team's mound star was very creditable. In the course of the game he managed to strike out seven men. Blume, the Colgate pitcher, made a wonderful showing in that he fanned twelve men in the game. George Brucker took Bartley's place at the hot corner and played wonderful ball.

Colgate hung up the first tally in the third inning. McBride started the session with a single to right field. He then stole second and went home on Dwyer's double to left field. The visiting team again scored in the fifth when Cotterell opened with a bunt to Holleran who threw wildly to Hanley, allowing Cotterell to go to second. Cotterell then made third on a sacrifice by McBride and went home in a triple by Dwyer.

In the sixth inning Union made a sensational double play when Hungerford grounded the ball to Lewis, who, assisted by Brucker, managed to work the double play.

Colgate again tallied in the ninth when McBride, Dwyer and Steffin crossed the plate. Union had two chances to score but they were passed by untimely strike-outs on the part of Clark and Mallery.

Dwyer, of the Colgate team, was the star at the stick and Steffin also starred in the ninth by a wonderful running catch.

Another Get-Together.

There is nothing that should summon the united spirit of the college so much as seeing the team defeated. If ever a "feller needs a friend it's when he's being worsted. And yet, it was remarked at the game the other day, that when Union's chances seemed best the cheering also was best. It naturally does bring a man to his feet when his team is winning. He yells then because he can't help it. But as a matter of fact, that isn't when the team needs the support.

It was another noticeable feature of Tuesday's game, that when Colgate was circling the bases, Union's cheering sections were silent. It is perfectly obvious that one wouldn't jump for joy at such a time, but his mere dejection doesn't help the man who has just dropped a fly, and feels pretty bad about it, to come back into the game with the old drive. A winning team can take care of itself, but in adversity, a rousing cheer, that carries with it the impression that the whole college is behind its players, has often turned the tide.

The baseball team has been unfortunate so far, but things are bound to change soon. The campus meeting Tuesday night is chiefly for the purpose of giving the boys a send-off. Death or illness ought to be the only excuse for absence. The team wants some encouragement to beat Hamilton.

Let's give it!

Contemporary Lyrics.

If you are a disciple of vers libre you should be able to derive considerable pleasure from a close study of the lyrics of recent popular songs; if you are not you may still extract considerable entertainment from the same source, for in them is abandon, joyousness, the untrammelled, the daring, scorn of anything resembling poetic form, smashing phrases, naughty quips, and phraseology and expressions so profound or obscure that only the supermind dare venture an opinion as to their significance—all this and more, according to your perspective—withal, verse so free both in form and thought, so original, so piquant, so full of exquisite inspiration that we often wonder whether the majority of our songsters might not follow the example of the illustrious composer of the "Song Without Words" without any material detriment or loss to their productions.

The melodic possibilities of mother, the fireside, Dixie, rural life, shamrocks, Hawaii, the Great White Way, the Ford, wedding bells, love, sweet sixteen, dreams, kisses, cherubic infants, and diverse degrees of blues have been worn threadbare. In view of the Peace Treaty, no-man's-land, over there, and over the top no longer arouse burning enthusiasm. Even the merits of our gallant Allies, Lafayette, the Maid of Orleans, and the lilies of France are becoming a bit passe.

All these themes exhausted or becoming obsolete, now we are being deluged with ditties fondly imagined by their authors to be spritely, piquant, and delightfully naughty—they mostly succeed only in being inane froth and unintelligible gibberish if not actually disgusting. Now we can forgive—nay, even relish—much that is a bit naughty, providing that it is a vehicle for a little cleverness or real humor, but the risque for itself alone—that is another matter. The lyrics of some of the recent best sellers are rather startling—read a few of them and draw your own conclusions. If not decidedly risque, then in nine cases out of ten they are sheer inanity; as a random example, consider the sparkling wit and phenomenal rhyme of this specimen:

"There was a cute fandango kind of Spanish tango in her poise.

There was a chatter, chatter, kind of sweet cantata in her voice;

She had the movement that appeals When she danced upon her heels.

Oh! oh! Now I know just how a Spaniard feels.

She had a kiss-me Cholly I'm a hot tamale in her eye,

And her guitar was shining and the moon was shining in the sky that evening.

She was a chicken a la King dish;
She couldn't talk a bit of English
But oh! how oh! how she could Span-ish."

O, song, what atrocities are committed in thy name!

LOVENHEIM, '20, NEW HEAD OF CLASSICAL CLUB

The Classical Club concluded its program for the year Tuesday night when R. D. Metzner read a paper dealing with the Renaissance in Italy Spain, Germany, France, and England, successively.

During the business meeting which followed, Jerome Lovenheim, '20, was elected president, Edwin O. Kennedy, '21, vice-president, and R. G. Walker, '21, secretary-treasurer. In considering the policies for the coming year, considerable discussion took place regarding the methods of admitting new members. It was decided that in the future only those who display especial interest in classical studies should be asked to join. Several other methods were suggested for raising the standards of the club. No new members have as yet been taken in.

AND WAR TAX

There gathered in a secluded "Morale Center" of those lonesome latter years that Poe speaks of a group of Students bent on a hilarious evening. One of their number had recently fallen heir to a fortune. He was, as well, a black sheep and his name had been brought up before the W. C. T. U. for irregular attendance at mission study class. His father had been one of those now spoken of in hoarse whispers as having existed in the Alcoholic Era, and his name was connected with Proctor's, Brandhorst's and the Arcade in a hopeless entanglement of crime.

This benighted gentleman of the old school had secreted in the family vault a package of Fatimas, and after the doctor had informed him that his days were numbered he passed this precious relic on to his son.

Tonight was the time when the boy became of age, and, with a few wary partners in mischief, he had decided to make a night of it. It was nearly seven-thirty—the Morale Center was almost deserted. Here and there a belated follower of the high life lounged at one of the tables, complacently sipping a Holstein frappe and reading the Review of Reviews, a magazine rapidly coming under the ban of the better class.

The Custodian of the Cigarettes glanced nervously at his watch—just one hour to curfew! He and his friends sought out a secluded corner, far from the sleeping attendant, and the yellow wrapper, crisp with age, broke under his nervous fingers.

The hour of stolen joy wore on. The mellow fragrance of forgotten summers rose in a halo about the young vandals' heads, and then—

Clang! The curfew! The attendant rose sleepily and began to close up for the night and the students stepped out into the street. They faced a long, cold walk, since it was long past the hours when cars ran regularly; but with light hearts they set out.

"Good old Dad!" murmured our hero.

"Let's give him the Chautauqua salute!" suggested one. Looking around to make sure they were not observed, the friends assented, and four white handkerchiefs were raised in silent tribute to a great man.

From one of the fraternities came the sound of the nightly song service and our group of merry-makers stole softly through the Payne Gate. Home at last!

CHI PSIS DINE AT UNIVERSITY CLUB, ALBANY

Last night, at the University Club in Albany, the members of the Chi Psi Fraternity of the Capitol District gave an informal beefsteak dinner and smoker. Chi Psis in the vicinity of Albany were invited, and many young alumni recently returned from the front were present at the jollification. Mr. Frank Wright, of Albany, was in charge of the entertainment. The members of the Union chapter who took in the affair reported that the evening was a success from every standpoint.

Mountebanks Plan a Heavier

The executive committee of the Mountebanks held a meeting Tuesday night at the residence of Dr. Stanley P. Chase, in North Church Street, to discuss plans for 1920. The club has settled on an extensive program for next year. There are to be two short plays and one long one instead of the customary single production. This, as Dr. Chase announced at the student meeting on Monday noon, will call for more funds. He suggested that the dramatic tax be increased from one dollar to a dollar and a half, since the cost of producing one play alone is about four hundred dollars.

The society is to have several trips, including one to New York City at the Hotel Plaza. Albany and Poughkeepsie are also possibilities. The program at home is to be a unique one, in the fact that there is to be an open air performance, staged in Jackson's Garden, besides the regular play in the College Gymnasium.

professor of philosophy, succeeding Dr. Frank S. Hoffman, who retired year before last because of ill-health. Dr. Chidsey is a graduate of Lafayette and of the Harvard graduate school. He has been an instructor at Harvard since his graduation. William L. Wanless, a graduate of Johns Hopkins University, has been appointed assistant professor of economics. Dr. Wanless has acted as an assistant to Dr. Hollander of the economics department at Johns Hopkins. Since Dr. Robert T. Hill entered war work, the study of economics has been carried on by Dr. George W. Kellogg, professor of Latin, but the department has been without an actual head. Professor Frank P. McKibben will occupy the chair of civil engineering, vacant since the retirement from the faculty of Professor Olin H. Landreth. Professor McKibben has been professor of civil engineering in Lehigh University and was recently with the United States shipping board. Before next fall five to seven additional members of the faculty are to be appointed.

Another distinct improvement will be ready next year when alterations have been made in Washburn Hall for the College Union. At a recent meeting of the board of directors plans were discussed for the completion of certain of the projected plans by commencement. During the Easter recess work was begun on the refitting of rooms in Washburn Hall, so that it may soon be changed to a students' building—a social center for all students. The work of equipping the cloak room will be finished within a few weeks. This is to occupy the former office of the Graduate Council on the south side of Hanna Hall. By next fall we expect to see the College Union running in full force and rendering to the college an extremely beneficial service.

For some time the construction and alterations in the new administration building have been progressing. Only a few months ago the building was a charred and blackened heap of bricks,—a reminder of the unfortunate fire in Dr. Hoffman's home, but the structure is rapidly assuming a form that is worthy of being seen beside the well-designed buildings of the north and south colleges. A novel feature in its decoration will be the adornment of twelve windows by seals of the twelve oldest colleges. When completed, the building will contain the offices of President Richmond, Secretary Frank C. Barnes, and Assistant-Treasurer Hartley F. Dewey. The book room and graduate council rooms will also be located here. The union of these administrative offices in one building will prove to be a distinct advantage.
