a star on the court for three years and also has taken a prominent part in football and in track. This year, on account of an injury received on the gridiron he was kept out of basketball until the middle of the season.

When the U and aUa men got together to elect a captain they decided to play a joke on Jimmie. Bill Hanley was nominated for captain and the nominations were

DEAN ANNOUNCES FACULTY DECISION

The Dean announced in chapel this noon that all seniors in good standing who enlist in some government service will be given their diplomas and that men in good standing in other classes will be rated next year in the class above their present one.

MACHINE GUN HERE

The Maxim machine gun made its appearance on the Campus. The members of the corps will start drills at once as they have secured an officer to drill them and to give instruction in the use of the weapon. The machine gun secured, is a heavy model for defensive purposes, which fires 600 shots a minute. With the gun is a complete outfit of belts and cartridges.

COLLEGE CENSUS IS PROGRESSING WELL

Student Committee Also Has Success With Enrollment Cards.

Work on the National Service census of the college, which is being carried on by a committee of students under faculty direction, is progressing rapidly. While it is yet too early to know the complete results of the census, the replies which have been received thus far, show that the students are entering whole-heartedly in the work and that in event of war, Union College would be well represented in practically every line of military work.

On Monday and Tuesday of this week two sets of cards were distributed to the students by the various class committees with the request that the required information be given and that the cards be returned as soon as possible. On the "National Service" card is printed a list of vocations or acquirements. Each student was requested to check off on this list.

NAVY'S PROPOSITION ATTRACTS MANY MEN

The navy's new propositions respecting the aviation corps and the reserve have attracted a remarkable number of Union students. Although two men had decided to join the aviation corps before Ensign Hambsch spoke at chapel, the rush took place after his talk yesterday.

Herbert Lasher, a senior in the E. E. course has already passed his examination for the aviation service and is now on his way to Pensacola, Fla., while J. L. Weinert, a sophomore in the C. E. course is waiting only for his parent's consent, before he will leave. Arthur Flood and C. U. Young, also sophomores, have passed the examination and likewise expect to leave very shortly.

Information On Course and Assignments for Next Lecture Are Given.

Dr. Hale held the first class in "Military Sketching and Map-Reading" Tuesday evening at seven o'clock in the Biology lecture room. Although a much smaller attendance had been anticipated, fifty men including several instructors were present. The first lecture was mostly an explanation of the objects of the course and a general survey of the whole subject of Military Topography of which the course to be given is only a part.

All those men who attended the first lecture were requested to sign up for the course in Dr. Hale's office immediately if they had not already done so. As it will be possible for any others to join the class next Tuesday such men are asked to sign also. This action is necessary to ascertain definitely the number of men to be accommodated.

In the course of his lecture Dr. Hale mentioned two other optional courses related to this one which he will give. Each will require one hour a week. The first is practical outdoor exercise in

HAMBSCH EXPLAINS NAVAL RESERVE

Particulars Concerning This Service Given at Chapel Yesterday.

The plans of the United States government for the naval reserve corps were explained, in so far as they apply to men wishing to join, by Ensign Hambsch, of the district naval recruiting station, in a short talk delivered at chapel yesterday. After complimenting the men upon the enthusiasm which they have shown for military preparedness, he entered immediately into a discussion of the qualifications which each man must have to become a naval reservist and the length of time of service and of the salary of the various classes of reserves. "Men who wish to enter the reserve need be afraid of no delay," declared the ensign. "We're cutting the strings of red tape now."

Applicants for enrollment in the reserve must pass a rigid physical

Nearly Three Hundred Men At Second Drill Last Evening.

SQUADS FORMED

Captain Clinton Urges Plan for Organization of the Companies.

The drill at the Armory last night under the direction of Captain Clinton was as enthusiastic as that of last Friday, although the number of men was slightly smaller. In all about two hundred and seventy-five men, including several professors were present. The work consisted of a short review of the ground covered last week and of the fundamentals of company and squad movements.

Directly after the drill and before dismissing the companies Captain Clinton expressed his approval of the interest and aptitude of the men. He is not sure what the movements of the National Guard will be, but he expressed the belief that mobilization will take place tomorrow. After this his movements are uncertain. However, if he leaves town he will make some arrangement whereby the drill may be carried on. Coupled with this the announcement was made that outdoor drill would be started just as soon as possible.

In an interview last night Captain Clinton made the following suggestion which he is anxious to have followed. In some way the students should be divided into three definite companies, one of which should be composed of the engineers. Officers should be chosen who have the best qualifications from the standpoint of military knowledge and ability to lead. In each company a captain, a first lieutenant, a second lieutenant, and four duty sergeants should be selected. With the organization the work may be carried on more expeditiously especially after Captain Clinton's departure.

After dismissal each temporary squad leader was instructed to take the names of the men in his group and to give this information to Dr. Hale.

UNION AWAKE

The enthusiasm exhibited in the drills, the interest in the different military courses, the remarkable response to Ensign Hambsch's call for men to join the Naval Reserve Force and the Aviation Corps, and the number of affirmative answers on the enrollment cards now being circulated, all these indicate one conclusion. Union is thoroughly awake! She is expending cheerfully a remarkable amount of energy, because she realizes that every fellow should be making some preparation for the future's probable events.

Last night Captain Clinton, to whom each of us is personally grateful, mapped out a course for the organization of three student companies. Such a step must facilitate progress, particularly as we shall have soon fewer officers to direct our drilling. Whatever form of co-operation the selection of officers may require each man should be anxious to contribute his aid. And indeed he will do so if he realizes the necessity. The only postulate which we should remember is: "We must continue in the way we have begun."

To the Editor of
the Concordiensis:

The issue of the Concordiensis for March twenty-second contains an article of adverse criticism about the Committee in charge of the Press Club Banquet. Such an unwarranted attack cannot pass by unanswered and the real reason for the empty chairs which were "as festive as a cold towel" brought to light.

The empty chairs were placed there for the accommodation of Union men, those men who undeservingly were accredited with Union spirit. The enrollment of the College is nearly five hundred. Last year one hundred and thirty-seven men attended. This year, the committee in charge naturally supposed that two hundred men might wish to demonstrate Union spirit to the one who has ably taught them what college spirit really is.

Criticism of Union teams playing for their Alma Mater is not a demonstration of true college spirit. Immunity from unreasonable criticism, should also be extended to committees doing college work when such criticism is without cause, especially when the criticiser has no fact. It is the student body's business to encourage and to aid not to discourage and to criticise.

For its miscalculation of college spirit the committee in charge of the Press Club dinner apologises. It was indeed heartrending.

Signed,

CHARLEST. LESTER '17.

To the Editor of
the Concordiensis:

In this time of such momentous national questions it may seem unpatriotic for us to continue our defense of the abolition of the present course of Freshmen banquets. We are not yet at war, and Union must still continue to improve her internal appearance if possible.

An editorial on March 11th., was a criticism of our last communication, and to this we desire to reply.

If our anagram may be ROT, we delight in it for such is the nature of the evil we would remove before decay sets in. We have not said that the spirit of upperclassmen should not be cultivated, but we have implied the cultivation of one's own classmates first would be more beneficial to the Freshman in his four years than that of the passing Senior. Our good friend might say that the Freshman needs that instruction of the upperclassman in the College's traditions, but we would reply that such instruction as that which was received from the upperclassmen at the last banquet might well be dispensed with at the present. We used to practice the throwing act while passing out of chapel, but now it is not being done. Moribund spirit of this kind should die.

If the upperclassmen are "the heart, lungs, lights, liver and stomach of the affair," it is time that they realize that certain rules of conduct are usually observed by guests.

Scraps may be declining, but we believe for the good of all concerned. Certain vivacity of the target practice variety may be fitting in some places. Such vivacity should not be preserved at Freshmen banquets. Let us preserve the banquet, but let us do away with what ever depreciates the occasion's real purpose, the promotion of real Freshman class spirit.

Signed, 'TOR.

examination and, if under age, must have the consent of their parents. The members of the present senior class who are taking the electrical engineering course will be given preference. If they pass the required tests they will be given commissions in the naval reserve as ensigns subject to call to service only in the event of war. During their period of active service the reservist ensigns will receive as compensation $1,870 per year. Other electrical engineering students who will not finish their courses this year will come next in line of favor. They may become petty officers in that part of the reserve which will have charge of coast naval protection. All other men may enroll as seamen. The term of service for men in all branches will be four years. It is expressly understood that no one will be called upon for actual service unless war is declared. There is, however, the prospect that a few may be asked to render what is called "request service" from time to time. This summons will not be often and the duration of such service will be short.

For college men there is an excellent opportunity for advance-

Lasher has had two years of military training in a private corps at Red Hook. He will enter the service with the rank of corporal, while Weinert, because of his experience in gasoline engines, will enter as machinist's mate. Just what position Art Flood and Bubbie Young will hold is not definitely known.

Yesterday afternoon between forty and fifty men from the Hill applied at the recruiting station for admission in the Navy Reserve Force, but many of them were rejected. The successful applicants do not have to leave at once, but they may be called on in case of emergency. If they so desire they may take a cruise this summer for which they will receive pay.

ment, according to Ensign Hambsch. Students who have a knowledge of gasoline motors or have had any experience as machinists are sure of almost immediate promotion.

After chapel the ensign met a large number of men in President Richmond's office and gave them further particulars as to salary, etc. He answered several questions which were asked by some of the most interested.

DR. NOBLE TO SPEAK AT "COLLEGE NIGHT"

Sunday's Service First of Series
at First Methodist Church.

The first of a series of services to be carried on during April in the First Methodist Church, will be Sunday evening at 7:30, when Dr. Eugene A. Noble will deliver an address expressly for college men.

The first service will be known as "College Night." The alumni of all colleges, who reside in Schenectady, as well as the students of Union are invited to attend. A special block of seats will be reserved for the Union men. Several of the fraternities are planning to send delegations.

making maps and the second is the reading of maps through the study of tactical problems. Each man was requested to decide how much time he could give to this work and to be ready next week to select, if he so desired either, either or both of these courses.

The assignment for next Tuesday is twofold. Each man is to determine the length of his stride by pacing once around the running track eighteen inches from the inside margin on four different days or twice on two days. By counting his steps and by knowing that the track is 880 yards around, he is to determine the length of his stride. Also each man is to figure out how many of his paces are equal to one inch on a map having a scale of three inches to one mile.

Dr. Hale started the lecture by explaining the objects of the course. First of all it aims to furnish an incentive for the personal work of each individual; second, to furnish a view of the literature on topography; third, to offer the results of his practical experience and technical reading on the subject.

After discussing the relative importance of maps to an infantry officer, Dr. Hale explained the different kinds of maps among which are the carefully prepared military topographic maps, those made by the engineers, those which are photographs from aeroplanes, and rough field sketches. The interesting thing about the ones prepared from photographs is that usually they have to be corrected to give the proper relation of the territory.

As a simple but very satisfactory book from which to study alone, "Military Sketching and Map Reading for Non-Commissioned Officers" was mentioned. Among the well known books mentioned in the course of the lecture were "Small Problems for Infantry" by A. W. Bjorstad, "Military Topography" by Carllock, "Manual of Military Training" by Moss, "Fundamentals of Military Service" by Andrews and "Military Topography" by Sherrill.

MANY ACTIVITIES AFFECTED BY DRILL

Because of the military drills at the armory the times of many college activities have either been changed or the activities are lying dormant for the time being. Prof. Landreth called off his Military Engineering Class which was scheduled for last night in order to let the men take advantage of the drill while Capt. Clinton is in town. It is expected that a new time will be found for these classes.

Dr. McComber has decided to call off the interclass swimming meet and D. F. Chapman has announced that the Classical Club will not carry out its original program. The announcement that the Press Club will meet hereafter on Monday night at 7:15 has also been given out.

COLLEGE TRUSTEES MEET FRIDAY

President Richmond will go to New York this Friday to be present at a meeting of the trustees of the college. The main question which will be discussed at that time will be the establishment of an Officers Reserve Corps at Union.

Such a corps cannot be formed before next year, but with the approval of the trustees it can probably be formed next September.

President Richmond has for a long time been desirous of form-all lines of work in which he had had experience. On the other card, the student indicated whether or not he intends to take the course in Military Training at Plattsburgh next summer, or to enroll in the Naval Reserve Corps, which takes the place of last year's "Naval Cruise."

Some eighty sets of cards have already been returned to the office of the Graduate Council in Washburn Hall, where the headquarters of the census is located. Of these replies, the majority have been received from the Senior and Junior classes. The greater part of the two lower classes remains unheard from as yet, but it is expected that all returns will have been made within a day or two.

About one-fourth of the cards received indicate the intention on the part of the signers to attend the Plattsburgh encampment next summer, while of the remainder, the Reserve Corps of Engineers, the Naval Reserve Force, the Signal Corps, Aviation, Red Cross and hospital work seem popular.
