GET-TOGETHER TO-NIGHT IN GYM

Revival of the Pre-War Spirit Will Take Place at Gym.

GEORGE DALEY TO SPEAK

Other Interesting Features on Program—Songs, Yells and Smoke to Proclaim Union
a College Again.

Tonight is the night, the Gym the place, 7 o'clock the time. What? Why the best get-together campus meeting the college has had,—a regular one with a few stunts as a side line, and spirit, the spirit of Old Union since 1795, always as the predominating influence.

Here's the program:

- 1 Music ----- Jazz Band
- 2 Boxing Match----- Frosh vs. Sophs
- 3 A Little Basketball Dope -----
----- Captain Yavits
- 4 More Music -----
----- Band, or by Voluntary Offerers
- 5 Short Talk ----- Mr George Daley
- 6 Boxing Match----- Juniors vs. Seniors
- 7 Skit ----- McGee et. al.

(Eighth Commandment)—Smoke up and enjoy the evening. When we yell, YELL! When we try to sing, TRY to sing. Get the old "pep" back again and start pulling TOGETHER! Let's GO, now, ALTOGETHER!

The meeting tonight has been planned and staged with a view of showing men in Union that the old pre-war spirit is still alive and that to make it better and bigger is to know each other. The old time campus meeting of which this is a revival began to languish some two or three years ago. When the war came on they practically ceased altogether. The S. A. T. C. further curbed the traditional democratic spirit and life of the student to such an extent that there was an actual danger of many of Union's traditions and customs becoming extinct through disuse. The Get-Together tonight is going to prove a life-saver in this respect.

On the other hand, a great many men have just returned to college after months of hard work in the army, navy and marine corps. Their return is a testimony that in all that time they never forgot Union. During their absence the college became, of necessity a military institution. That time is past now, however; conditions that military regime would not admit are again returning to the surface.

It is to be hoped that the "coming-out party" with its songs and yells will be an effective means of putting some jazz into the cheering section at tomorrow's game. Union's spirit at basketball games this season has been exceptionally good but with Syracuse to temper the spirit and a real Get-Together to boot "Bedlam" ought to

PROF. BENNETT LECTURES ON "MODERN GREEKS"

City State First Experiment in Civilization, Tells Club.

At the meeting of the Classical Club Tuesday night, Professor John I. Bennett was the principal speaker, the subject of his lecture being, "Modern Greeks." During the course of his lecture Professor Bennett pointed out that Greece, like all of the European nations is very unsettled and that the world was not yet static and in all probability would not be so for some time to come. A synopsis of Professor Bennett's lecture follows:

The modern Greeks are few in number, and, like the ancient Greeks, great lovers of liberty. To preserve this has been their great ambition. The Greek City State was referred to as the laboratory where the "first experiment in civilization was performed" and carried out to a high degree. The Greeks were surrounded by barbarians and empires, especially the Persians who have been their bitter enemies, but in spite of these difficulties they have remained the nucleus of civilization.

The Greeks have suffered many defeats from their more powerful neighbors, being overthrown first by the Macedonians, and then by the Romans. But Greece prospered and flourished under Rome, for the Romans were great lovers of the beautiful and copied much from the Greeks. Indeed, is it the Turks who have been their greatest oppressors. During the fifteenth century they crossed over and secured a foothold on Grecian territory, which they continued to enlarge upon at every opportunity, until they have controlled a great part of Greece. Their rule has been most oppressive and cruel, compelling payment of enormous taxes.

The greatest ambition of the Greeks has been partially realized in recovering a good part of the territory that had been wrested from them by the Turks. This has been largely accomplished through the aid of the great statesmen.

Professor Bennett in concluding mentioned the benefits which the Greeks had received by coming to America. Their observation of our customs has taught them how to settle disputes in other ways besides cutting each others' throats. It is hoped that this new experience will enable them to live in peace and harmony with neighboring countries.

The next meeting of the Classical Club will be February 18.

"DOE" YAVITS RE-ELECTED BASKETBALL CAPTAIN

Isadore Yavits, captain of last year's basketball team and a member of the Terrace Council, was unanimously re-elected captain of basketball Friday afternoon to fill the place of Captain Jones who has been unable to play because of the eligibility rule. "Doe" has been acting captain this year with great success and will put his team to the test of the season tomorrow. George Brucker was also nominated for the captaincy but withdrew in favor of Yavits.

Former Captain Jones is reported to be suffering from a slight attack of pneumonia at his home in Albany.

JUNIORS TRIM FROSH

BY SCORE OF 22-8

The Junior class basketball team took an easy victory from the Freshman quintet Tuesday afternoon to the tune of 22 to 8. The first half was rather close at times although the Juniors led throughout the game.

In the second half Weinhold was substituted for Lyman in the Junior line-up and the upperclassmen took a brace. Murray's and captain Lewis' playing featured for the "Frosh," the former seeming to have it on Hal Wittner. Weinhold was the Junior star.

GARNET GIRT FOR BATTLE ROYAL

'Varsity Spends Week of Staunch Preparation.

THREE VETS BACK

Brasha, Conlin, and Schwartz of Famous Orange Champions to Buck Union.

On Saturday night Syracuse comes to town with a reputation; also a crack basketball team composed of three of her last year's 'varsity men, who played on the famous Orange championship team of last season. The contest promises to be of great interest as the Garnet five will be put to a real test; and, a test as she has never been put to in the past few years. The reputation of the branwy Syracusans bids fair to make the mix-up very exciting and our fellows will be at their best if they come through with the winning colors. During the past week the squad has put every bit of "pep" and "go" into their practice. Everything has been good hard work for they want that game and they have all decided to get it.

Brasha, the crack right guard, on the Orange team, has been playing championship ball all season. He is the brains of the Syracuse team and although he cannot always cage the ball, he can always bring it down to a point where someone else can. As far as passwork goes and guarding he is a wonder and plays a very heady game throughout. He bears watching.

Conlin their lofty center, starred on Lansingburg High School the year the team over there was famous. He has been playing a rollicking good game for Syracuse and "Bill" Hanley will have his hands full as Conlin's eye for the basket is sharp and he drops them in from far out on the court. He is red-headed, too, and that usually worries one considerably.

Schwartz, the man who starred last year, cannot play as he has been barred by the four year rule. The Union campus, of course, is much downcast by this as we were all very anxious to see him in action.

Taking the team as a whole, it is very heavy and will outweigh our team by twenty pounds. This will make it a very strenuous contest for Union. However, our speed on the court should give us a distinct advantage. We should run rings around them.

The usually play a long shot long, high pass game and our team should work into this style of play in good fashion because of their speed and agility. It looks as though it were going to be Union's night as Colgate beat Syracuse last Saturday by three points, but in previous games the Remember!

Remember at the game tomorrow to show real spirit. Come out with all that's in you to back the team. But remember that the highest distinction a Union man hopes to attain is the mark of a gentleman in his every act and word. Union's ideal in athletics is "sport for sport's sake," and nothing more. Remember, then, in case of close or unfair decisions, it is infinitely better that Union lose a point than tarnish her reputation. Remember, also, that to be a beneficent victor, a good loser, and at all times a true sportman is to be a true son of old Union.

Why the Classics?

Several evenings ago we happened to be studying in the same room with a Sophomore engineer, and had the good fortune to undergo an experience, which was able to supply us with an inspiration for this little article. The gentleman in question was doing his regular English lesson in one of William Shakespeare's most popular successes, namely "Hamlet," and was incidentally revealing to us an amazingly incredible and plentiful lack of understanding of even the simplest literary phrases and allusions, so common in Shakespeare. Every minute or two he would anxiously inquire what this word meant, that phrase, or perhaps some classical allusion. The section which he was studying happened to be particularly rich in words of Latin origin, and references to Greek and Roman mythology. For instance, in the players' scene, the first player speaks most grandiloquently of Priam, Hecuba, and the fall of Troy. It is evident that to appreciate this passage at least, a knowledge of the story of Troy was absolutely necessary. Well, to our engineer the word "Troy" conveyed no association other than collars, and Hecuba, for all he knew, might have been some prize milch-cow. We could see that he was for the most part reading mere words. One of the world's greatest writers, from whose works mankind has drawn an invigorating mental stimulus and refreshment, was absolutely as dry as the Sahara itself to the student, who was nothing but a "math shark." The appreciation of the wonderful range of imagination, the great opportunity for psychological study afforded by an intelligent understanding of the Shakespearean characters through their speeches, were absolutely lost to him. And then they ask us why we study the classics, and present to us arguments about the futile impracticability of studying what men have written and thought hundreds of years ago.

Hundreds of years ago. No. We will not mention years. The classics have no years to us; they are new-born every year, every day. They have become part of our human heritage just as much as our reasoning faculties and our senses are part of us. What the ancients have said and done; what those Greek and Roman thinkers and poets have accomplished, can never be surpassed by us. Every day we find new applications, taken from classic study, to the problems and questions of modern life. What they have to teach us is always fresh and practical. The theory of Lucretius, for instance, about the nature of matter, namely, that it is composed of atoms and void, and is indestructible, has been taken up and accepted almost in its entirety by all scientists of today. Regarding the genesis of things, Lucretius foreshadows modern science in the nebular hypothesis, and in the doctrine of the evolution of man from the brute state. Galileo was not by any means the first man who held a correct conception about the shape of the world and the organization of the universe. An ancient Greek was ahead of him. Even James Watt had his predecessor among the Romans, one of whom used to spend his time manufacturing steam toys. Greek and Roman methods of architecture are followed to this day. The ancient mathematicians and physicists have provided the basis for many of the subjects which our engineers are now studying. In Martial we find many humorous little poems dealing with such modern subjects as false teeth and inheritance tax. Finally, if we glance at any of the modern and near modern systems of philosophy, we find that they are all based upon Greek or Roman theories of life. The monists, the dualists, the materialists, the empiricists, and the transcendentalists, all had their counterparts in the ancient world. And is the idea of moderation and self-control in all things, the central point of all classical theories of all living, any less applicable or profitable now than it was in the days before our era. The principle of moderation, an echo from Horace, Catullus, Socrates, Lucretius, has today been hailed as the panacea for bodily and mental ailments.

The study of the classics provides one of the most important methods of training a man for the battle of life, in these fight-or-go-down times. A man who has delved deep into the world's history and literature, and who has studied and compared ancient and modern philosophers is a much stouter, wiser, larger-living, individual, than the man who merely has a superficial knowledge of things present. Which would make the better executive and leader of men? He who has studied the teachings of ancient philosophers, who has gone right to the well-springs of knowledge, and read what the ancient authors have had to say about man and men is by far the best judge and master of himself, and consequently of other men. By reading more into the events of life, by being able to lift up a stone from among the foundations of knowledge to which to cement his present experience a man can win more success in life, and make what he does and says ring soundly solid, and sincere. An analogy is furnished here by the system of precedents in law. One precedent is the foundation and authority for the establishment of another.

Our language consists in large part of words of Latin derivation. If we do not understand these longer Anglicized Latin words, our ability to appreciate fully the best ideas that have been expressed by men may be seriously crippled. Fine shades of meaning are lost to us. It is the larger words of classic derivation that possess in themselves specialized particular meanings without which subtle ideas cannot find expression. It is the short, common words that possess general meanings, and frequently lack the finer more sensitive distinctions of thought. Inversely, the man who can express his thoughts accurately, convincingly, and graphically, by the use of these specialized words, and by examples and illustrations from older civilizations, is much more likely to carry through his projects successfully, and leave his ideas and plans for future generations to use and imitate just as we use the classic writers.

We have seen how closely classics are related to modern life and how lessons gained from their study can make us more competent to win success and satisfaction out of life. With this we close our argument. Nothing further need be said about the contentment and pleasure a man can get from reading our English prose and poetry, for example, with a keen appreciation of the historical and classical allusions, with a thorough understanding of the subtlest shades of meaning and ideas, and with a mental background of knowledge upon which his thoughts can play and be reflected.

The Bottom of the Keg

R. A. has received sundry inquiries into his opinion of the new and popular bolt ruling. In reply we respectfully submit the suggestion that supervised study, which was so successful under the old military regime be re-instituted, together with forced confinement to the Campus of the students. If this is not done we fear that the full efficiency of educational machine may be lost. This idea and the new ruling should be great factors in the development of the super-student!

From 4 until 7 P. M. tomorrow, Alpha Delta Phi is giving an informal tea dance. Collins' orchestra of Albany has been engaged to furnish the music. All fraternity men from the Sophomore, Junior and Senior classes are cordially invited. Mrs. James Yelverton, Mrs. Willis T. Hanson, Jr., Mrs. Albert W. Erdman, and Mrs. Langdon Gibson will do the pouring.

Friday night Delta Upsilon will hold its first dance of the season. Turner's orchestra will supply the music. Mrs. DeWitt C. Smith and Mrs. Robert Landon are to act as chaperones.

Beta Theta Pi; Kappa Alpha vs. Chi Psi.

March 31—Psi Upsilon vs. Phi Delta Theta; Alpha Delta Phi vs. Delta Upsilon.

Week ending April 5—Beta Theta Pi vs. Pyramid Club; Chi Psi vs. Lambda Chi Alpha; Kappa Alpha vs. Delta Upsilon.

April 7—Delta Phi vs. Pyramid; Sigma Phi vs. Lambda Chi Alpha.

Week ending April 12—Kappa Alpha vs. Beta Theta Pi; Sigma Phi vs. Phi Gamma Delta; Delta Phi vs. Phi Delta Theta.

Week ending April 19—Kappa Alpha vs. Lambda Chi Alpha; Sigma Phi vs. Pyramid Club; Alpha Delta Phi vs. Lambda Chi Alpha.

When a game is scheduled for a certain date it must be played on that date as the Star alleys are engaged for that evening and are reserved for the League matches. Other games must be played before a certain date as the schedule indicates. Hand all records of matches to R. V. I. Kathan, Psi Upsilon House; J. L. D. CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION UNDER FULL SWING

Membership Campaign to Begin Next Week.

The Union College Christian Association has started this year, not with the hackneyed resolution to make this the best year ever, but with the sincere determination to make the Association an important factor in college life as well as a source of benefit to the students. The large number of undergraduates who have already shown their interest in the Christian Association by lending their support, points to a season of opportunity and success. No doubt the war has had a great effect in renewing the interest of college students in things that are vital to life, for it certainly seems as though more fellows are becoming interested in affairs of a universal, as well as a religious nature.

As far as the religious work of the Christian Association is concerned, the two main items are at present Vespers and Bible class. Neither of these need introduction except to say that anyone who attends these for the short time they occupy once a week, will certainly be well repaid.

Silliman Hall is undoubtedly in better condition than in previous years although it is slightly at a disadvantage for lack of the use of the second story. It is hoped that some kind elephant will donate his tusks for the manufacture of some pool balls so that the table may be put into use soon.

Some time next week a membership campaign is going to be inaugurated. The purpose of this is to secure a strong body of active supporters who are willing to help in the various functions of the Association and also to take part in its administration. The student body will be canvassed by various members of committees who have been appointed, in order that everyone may be given a chance personally to become a member. Among the various opportunities for service which will be given the members are such matters as teaching English to foreigners, securing jobs for students, etc. The broadest kind of field is opened in this way for those who desire to perform some unselfish and beneficial service to their fellow men.

Another matter which comes under the auspices of the Association is the Student Volunteer Movement. On the 21, 22 and 23 of this month a conference is going to be held in Albany, the purpose of which is to create interest in missions. Some of the best speakers on this subject will be at the conference and it will undoubtedly

TAMSETT TO GROW ORANGES 'STEAD OF BALL TEAMS

Committee Ready to Pick Successor of Coach Turned Agriculturist.

"Jimmie" Tamsett of Albany, our well known baseball coach of the past two years, is no longer going to cultivate crack baseball teams. Instead he is going to grow oranges down in Florida. Jimmie's latest acquisition is an orange grove 'way down in the sunny south, wither he will go ere long and his going leaves Union minus a baseball coach. The committee for the selection of a new coach has been appointed. It consists of the captain and manager of baseball and the Athletic Committee. This body has in view several men whom they consider able to continue the good work of Tamsett and perhaps better it. No definite decision has yet been made, but the four most eligible men are, "Bill" McCarty of Albany; "Ed" Pierce of Saratoga; R. F. Dexter of Utica, and a famous old Union baseball and basketball star, "Dave" Beaver of Schenectady. The Committee hopes to reach a decision soon.

All-winter athletics are to be held at Yale, but a general program of economy with regard to coaching, training tables and long trips will be practiced throughout the coming year. Basketball will be the chief indoor sport.

A conference that proved to be one of the most momentous in the history of the Interfraternity Council at Williams was held several weeks ago. Two of the fraternities broke the rushing agreement that bound all the fraternities and began open rushing, a thing unheard of in the history of fraternity rushing. They were properly squelched, however, by the 12 other fraternities, who lived up to what they called "a gentleman's agreement."
